FEDERAL GRANTS-IN-AID TO STATES AND PAYMENTS TO INDIVIDUALS

JUNE 14, 1957.—Ordered to be printed

Mr. BYRD, from the Joint Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures, submitted the following

REPORT

INTRODUCTION

The Joint Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures in March 1947 published Senate Document 13 (80th Cong., 1st sess.) under the title "Federal Subsidies and Federal Grants-in-Aid to States." This report was revised and brought up to date in February 1952 as Senate Document 101 (82d Cong., 2d sess.) under the title of "Federal Grants-in-Aid to States, Including Direct Payments to States Under Cooperative Arrangements and Federal Expenditures Within States for Relief and Other Aid." This report, under the title of "Federal Grants-in-Aid to States and Payments to Individuals," revises the material in the two previous reports and brings the figures through fiscal year 1956, ended June 30, 1956.

This 1957 report sets forth information on direct Federal payments to States and local units under cooperative arrangements and payments to individuals, etc., within States which provided relief and other aid, fiscal years 1934 to 1956, inclusive. It does not include Federal payments generally referred to as subsidies, loans, payrolls, retirement contributions, social security payments under contributory programs, etc.

As in both previous reports on this general subject, the Committee presents this revision as a factual report without recommendations.

EXPENDITURES

All grant and payment information set forth has been compiled from United States Treasury Department reports. It falls generally into two categories: (1) Federal expenditures for direct payments to States and local units under cooperative arrangements; and (2) Federal expenditures within States in the form of payments to individuals, etc., for relief and other aid. In the 23-year period, 1934–56, covered by the report, $80.5 billion has been paid out through more than 125 programs. Categorically, these payments are summarized in annual totals as follows:

TABLE I.—Summary by categories; payments to States and local units, and payments to individuals, etc., within States, fiscal years 1934–56, inclusive

THREE PERIODS

Under analysis, the 23-year period covered by the report naturally breaks itself into three broad periods: (1) depression and prewar period, (2) World War II emergency period; and (3) postwar period. Prior to the depression, which developed in the 1930's, there were few of these programs and payments through them were inconsequential. In the 8-year depression-prewar period, 1934 to 1941, inclusive, Federal expenditures through these programs totaled $24.7 billion. There was a precipitous drop in Federal payments to States and individuals within States during the 5-year war-emergency period, 1942 to 1946, inclusive, when expenditures through these programs totaled $10.4 billion. In the 10-year postwar period, 1947 to 1956, inclusive, expenditures through these programs totaled $45.4 billion.

The rate of recent increase in expenditures through these programs is indicated by comparison of figures for fiscal year 1955 and fiscal year 1956 which shows an increase of 10 percent in Federal grants to States and local units, and an increase of 17 percent in payments to individuals, etc., within States. Federal payments for grants-in-aid to States reached their peak of $3.5 billion in fiscal year 1956. Federal payments to individuals, etc., within States reached their peak of nearly $4 billion in 1948 at the height of the veterans readjustment programs. Payments in this category during fiscal year 1956 totaled $1.7 billion.

Federal payments to States and local units and to individuals, etc., within States, 1934 through 1956, are summarized by periods in table 2, as follows:

TABLE II.—Summary by periods: Payments to States and local units and payments to individuals, etc., within States, depression-prewar period 1934–41, war-emergency period 1942–46, and postwar period 1947–56

PROGRAMS

The figures in table 6–A show that in all three periods—depression and prewar, war emergency, and postwar—the largest expenditures in the payments to States and local units category were for highways, public assistance, and public health. They show also that while payments to States and local units have risen steadily, the character and emphasis of Federal-State programs have remained relatively unchanged.

The figures in table 6–B show that in the depression-prewar period in the category of payments to individuals, etc., within States, expenditures were greatest in the relief programs; in the war-emergency period expenditures were greatest in the agriculture, defense-worker training, war housing, and public works programs; and in the postwar period expenditures were greatest in the veterans, agriculture, public health, and National Guard programs.

Generally speaking, these tables show that payments by the Federal Government to States and local units and individuals, etc., within States, fall into three broad functional groups: (1) domestic-civilian, (2) national defense, and (3) veterans. Expenditures through programs in these groups are summarized in table 3, as follows:

[1] Domestic-civilian programs include agriculture adjustment, conservation and reclamation programs, public works, social security, public health, highways, etc.
[2] National defense programs include wartime supply and distribution of farm labor; community war service day care; War Shipping Administration, State marine schools; National Guard; training of defense workers and nurses; War Relocation Authority; war housing and war public works.
[3] Veterans programs include soldiers' homes and the numerous postwar readjustment programs.

COMPARATIVE INFORMATION BY STATES

For the information of those wishing to compare payments to States, local units, and individuals through these programs with other pertinent information on State bases, table 4, showing personal income, population, and Federal payments through these programs by States, has been compiled from official Federal sources.

For purposes of comparing the latest State statistics on personal income available at the time of this compilation with Federal payments to States, etc., figures in table 4 are through 1955. It will be noted that all other tables in this report are through 1956.

TABULAR PRESENTATION

Table 5, on page 8, shows Federal payments to States, local units, and individuals, etc., within States, summarized by States, period totals, and grand total.

Table 6–A, on page 14, shows expenditures by year and by program in the category of grants-in-aid to States and local units.

Table 6–B, on page 23, shows expenditures by year and by program in the category of payments to individuals, etc., within States.

Table 7, on page 31, shows cumulative expenditures by program, by agency totals, and by State.

Table 8, beginning on page 64, shows expenditures by programs in each State in the depression and prewar period (1934–41), war-emergency period (1942–46), and the postwar years (1947–56).

Supplemental information on programs active in fiscal year 1956 may be found in the appendix, beginning on page 604.

TABLE V.—Summary, by year and by State, of expenditures made by the Government as direct payments to States and local units under cooperative arrangements and payments to individuals, etc., within States which provided relief and other aid, fiscal years 1934 to 1956, inclusive; with subtotals for the depression and prewar period (1934–41), war-emergency period (1942–46), and the postwar period (1947–56)

1956 Program Data and Descriptions

Information set forth in this section of the report is designed to supplement the tabular material contained in the body of the report.

This information is largely in the nature of background and descriptive material, intended to set forth briefly some of the basic characteristics of the individual programs now active.

The manner in which this Federal assistance is distributed to recipient State and local governments, agencies, and individuals varies greatly among the programs. Some programs require that Federal funds be matched from sources within the State; in some the Federal Government's share is limited to a percentage of the cost of the program or is determined by formulas specified by law; some programs involve outright grants based on population, extent of need, and various other criteria requiring no matching of Federal funds; some are shared revenue programs through which the State or locality receives a portion of the Federal revenues derived largely from the management and use of public lands; some are programs through which payments are made to individuals and institutions who qualify under law, such as the reconversion benefits for veterans.

The following material includes a table setting forth historical information as to year of establishment, citation to the law, and basis of apportionment (appendix A) and descriptive paragraphs for each program active in fiscal year 1956 (appendix B). The item numbers shown for each program correspond with program numbers in table 7 (p. 31) and table 8 (beginning on p. 64).

APPENDIX A

APPENDIX B

DESCRIPTION OF GRANTS AND PAYMENTS MADE IN FISCAL YEAR 1956

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

1. Payments for agricultural experiment stations.—Funds are allotted to the agricultural experiment stations of the land-grant colleges in the States, Hawaii, Alaska, and Puerto Rico for agricultural research, including investigations and experiments to promote a permanent and efficient agricultural industry and improvements in the rural home and rural life. The program is supported through allotments made to States partly on the basis of prescribed amounts and partly on the basis of rural and farm population and the need for research in smaller States.

2. Cooperative agricultural extension work.—Cooperative agricultural extension work was established to make available to farmers, farm homemakers, and rural youth the results of research conducted by the cooperating research agencies. The Department of Agriculture, the land-grant colleges, the county governments, and various other research agencies participate in this eductaional program. Funds are distributed on the basis of rural population and matched by the State or Territory receiving payment.

5. State and private forestry cooperation.—This program, carried on in cooperation with the States, encourages private timber growing through assistance in preventing and suppressing forest fires, reforestation of denuded and poorly stocked areas, and good management of woodlands.

14. Agricultural conservation program.—This program is designed to encourage conservation by sharing with farmers and ranchers the cost of applying approved measures considered as needed in the public interest and which farmers generally would not perform adequately with their own resources. Funds are distributed among the States and Territories on the basis of conservation needs.

15. Sugar Act program.—Under the Sugar Act of 1948 payments are made to the domestic producers of sugar under specified conditions. The program is designed to assure consumers an adequate and reasonable supply of sugar, to maintain and protect the domestic sugar industry, and to promote export trade.
